Project Title	Project Summary or Abstract
Promoting health and wellbeing in school built environments: Development of evidence-based fact sheets	The U.S. Green Building Council (USGBC) is a nonprofit organization based in Washington, D.C. It promotes sustainability in building design, construction, and operation. I worked with them to craft evidence based fact sheets which could be used as learning resources for a school district audience. Topics included the hazards of volatile organic compounds and particulate matter in the school environment.
